PORTOBELLO

Is a town, parliamentary burgh and a fashionable watering place, on the south side of the Firth of Forth, in the parishes of Duddingston and South Leith ; the town is 3 miles east from Edinburgh by road, and has two stations, one near the centre of the town and another at Joppa, on the Berwick and Carlisle section of the North British railway. It was created a burgh in 1883, and from that date until 1896 was governed by a provost, two bailies, a treasurer and nine councillors; but under the provisions of the "Edinburgh Extension Act, 1896" (59 and 60 Vict. c. 203), amalgamating the burgh of Portobello with the city and royal burgh of Edinburgh, it now forms, both municipally and for police purposes, part of the royal burgh, the district annexed being divided into three wards, distinguished as the "Portobello Wards," and returning nine members to the Edinburgh City Council, but on the re-division of the city in the year 1900, as appointed by the Act, one of these will be the "Portobello Ward," and will return three members. As, however, Portobello is about three miles from the east end of Princes street and about a mile and a half from the nearest suburban streets at Piershill, it is practically a separate town, having an individuality and history of its own. As a town it has risen to its present importance with singular rapidity ; towards the close of the last century the ground which it occupies was an unproductive waste along the shore, overspread with whins and bent, the only dwellings here consisting of a thatched hut of two rooms, which stood until 1862, when it was pulled down to make room for the Town Hall, and one or two shepherds' shealings, the hut being used as a hostelry, or half-way house, for travellers taking the shore road from Musselburgh to Edinburgh. The town, which continues to increase in size and importance and has a population of over 9,000, now consists principally of one main street, the High street, 1¼ miles in length, which forms a part of the highway from Edinburgh to London, and includes Joppa, now practically a part of the town ; branching off right and left are other streets with terraces, squares &c. the houses in most of which have gardens in front. The residential accommodation is ample, and there are several hotels. The beach, a noble expanse of pure smooth sand, affords safe and convenient bathing at all times of the tide, and there is also a suite of warm salt water baths. The Marine Promenade, laid out by the Town Council, is a broad thoroughfare, a mile in length, stretching along the sea beach, and in the centre stands the Prince of Wales's Fountain, an ornamental structure for drinking purposes. The pier, 1,250 feet long, has seats for 2,000 persons, and a spacious saloon with pavilion above, in which concerts are held twice daily during the summer months. Water of excellent quality is supplied in abundance at high pressure, and the houses and streets are lighted with gas and electricity. By an agreement dated 24 Ap. 1896, the Portobello Gas Light Co. Limited transferred the whole undertaking to the Corporation of Edinburgh as from 11 Nov. 1896. A large sum of money has also been expended on the drainage of the town, which is now thorough and complete. Under the new Act the town and district will be subject for this purpose to the control of the Water of Leith Purification and Sewerage Commissioners. Considerable trade is done in the manufacture of paper, bottles, pottery, earthenware, bricks and tiles, and at Joppa there are salt works.

Conjointly with Leith and Musselburgh, Portobello comprises the Leith parliamentary district, constituted in 1833, under the "Reform Act, 1832" (2 and 3 Wm. IV. c. 45), and returning one member. The Corporation of Edinburgh are now (1899) doing much to make Portobello one of the most attractive of the neighbourhoods of the capital. A park of over 45 acres has been acquired on the south side of the railway, which is now being laid out for recreative purposes with broad walks and belts of trees, sufficient space being assigned for golf and other games. Commodious marine baths are also being erected on the Promenade at the foot of Melville street, at a cost of about £30,000, where visitors may be supplied with hot and cold baths both of salt and fresh water. There is a large influx of visitors during the summer months, Portobello being very conveniently situated as regards railway accommodation, not only with Edinburgh and the west of Scotland, but with the south. It also is largely resorted to by residents from the inland towns along the line of the North British Railway, who find in Portobello all the advantages of a seaside resort combined with the attractions of the neighbouring capital. The quoad sacra parish of Portobello was formed from the civil parishes of Duddingston and South Leith. The church of the quoad sacra parish of Portobello was erected in 1809, as a chapel of ease, subordinate to the kirk session of Duddingston, and the Rev. John Glen continued to be the minister until the disruption of 1843. There are branches here of the Royal Bank of Scotland, the National Bank of Scotland Limited and the Clydesdale Bank Limited. Three weekly newspapers are published here, viz.—"The Edinburgh Citizen and Portobello Advertiser," "The Midlothian Journal" and the Musselburgh News," all on Friday. The scenery surrounding the town is varied and extensive—on one side is the noble estuary of the Forth, with the island of Inchkeith, the hills of Fife and Kinross, the fertile lands of East Lothian, Fawside Castle, Troplainlaw and North Berwick Law, and in the distance the Bass Rock, and on the other side are Arthur's Seat, Craigmillar Castle and the Pentland Hills. The Duke of Abercorn K.G., P.C., C.B. Sir James Percy Miller bart. D.L., J.P. of Manderston, and Wakefield Christie Miller esq. are the principal landowners.

Joppa, before mentioned as intimately connected with and now a part of the town of Portobello, is of modern growth. Its salt works and quarries have been wrought for many years, but the latter are now worked out. Coal at one time was found in great abundance ; but in consequence of the flooding of the pits, which stood near the sea, in 1790, the works have been entirely abandoned. From its proximity to the beach and rocks, Joppa is a favourite resort of summer visitors. There are numbers of neat villas built near the road, nearly all of which are laid out for their accommodation.

The rateable value is £53,295; the population in 1891 was 8,684, and in 1881, 6,926 ; the ecclesiastical parish in 1891 contained a population of 5,594.

HERIOT-WATT COLLEGE.

This institution, the annual provision for which is to be not less than £4,000, is mainly intended to give thorough scientific instruction, at moderate fees, to students in attendance at evening classes. Day classes for higher technical training were established in the College in 1888. In the bursary system, established in connection with the Heriot-Watt College, are included bursaries for (1) "covering the cost of education & books" of students requiring aid in attending the evening classes; & (2) assisting students to carry on their education in the day technical department, or in the University of Edinburgh

There were over 3,793 students (male & female) in attendance at the evening classes in session 1898-99

THE MURRAY KEITH FUND,

Royal Infirmary, Lauriston place.

Established by Mrs. Janet Murray Keith & her sister, Mrs. Ann Murray Keith, between 1793 & 1816, for relief (at their own homes) of persons who have been dismissed from the Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh as incurable. The fund is in the name of the Corporation of the Royal Infirmary, & is to be kept for ever separate from the affairs of the Royal Infirmary, the managers of which appoint annually three trustees to administer the fund. The fund is at present about £6,250 in amount, the interest of which is distributed among about 40 persons, who are paid their several allowances quarterly in advance.

ROYAL INFIRMARY SAMARITAN SOCIETY.

To assist the families & dependents of patients in the Royal Infirmary, Chalmers' Hospital and the City Hospital, being bread-winners, to give clothing or other needful help to patients on leaving these institutions, to endeavour to procure work for them, and generally to befriend and be of use to them as far as possible.
